Here comes a painter—he's in a big rush—
With big cans of paint and a big hairy brush.

Here comes another one — this one is fatter !
He has a big brush and a tall wooden ladder.

The painter that's fat says, "It's time to begin!"
But the one working hard is the painter that's thin.

The thin painter's standing on top of the ladder
And dropping red paint on the one that is fatter.

The painters are finished—there's paint on their clothes
And a big drop of paint on the fat painter's nose!

COME TO COME ONE A

And the sign they have painted in letters so tall
Says: Come to the circus!
Come one and come all!

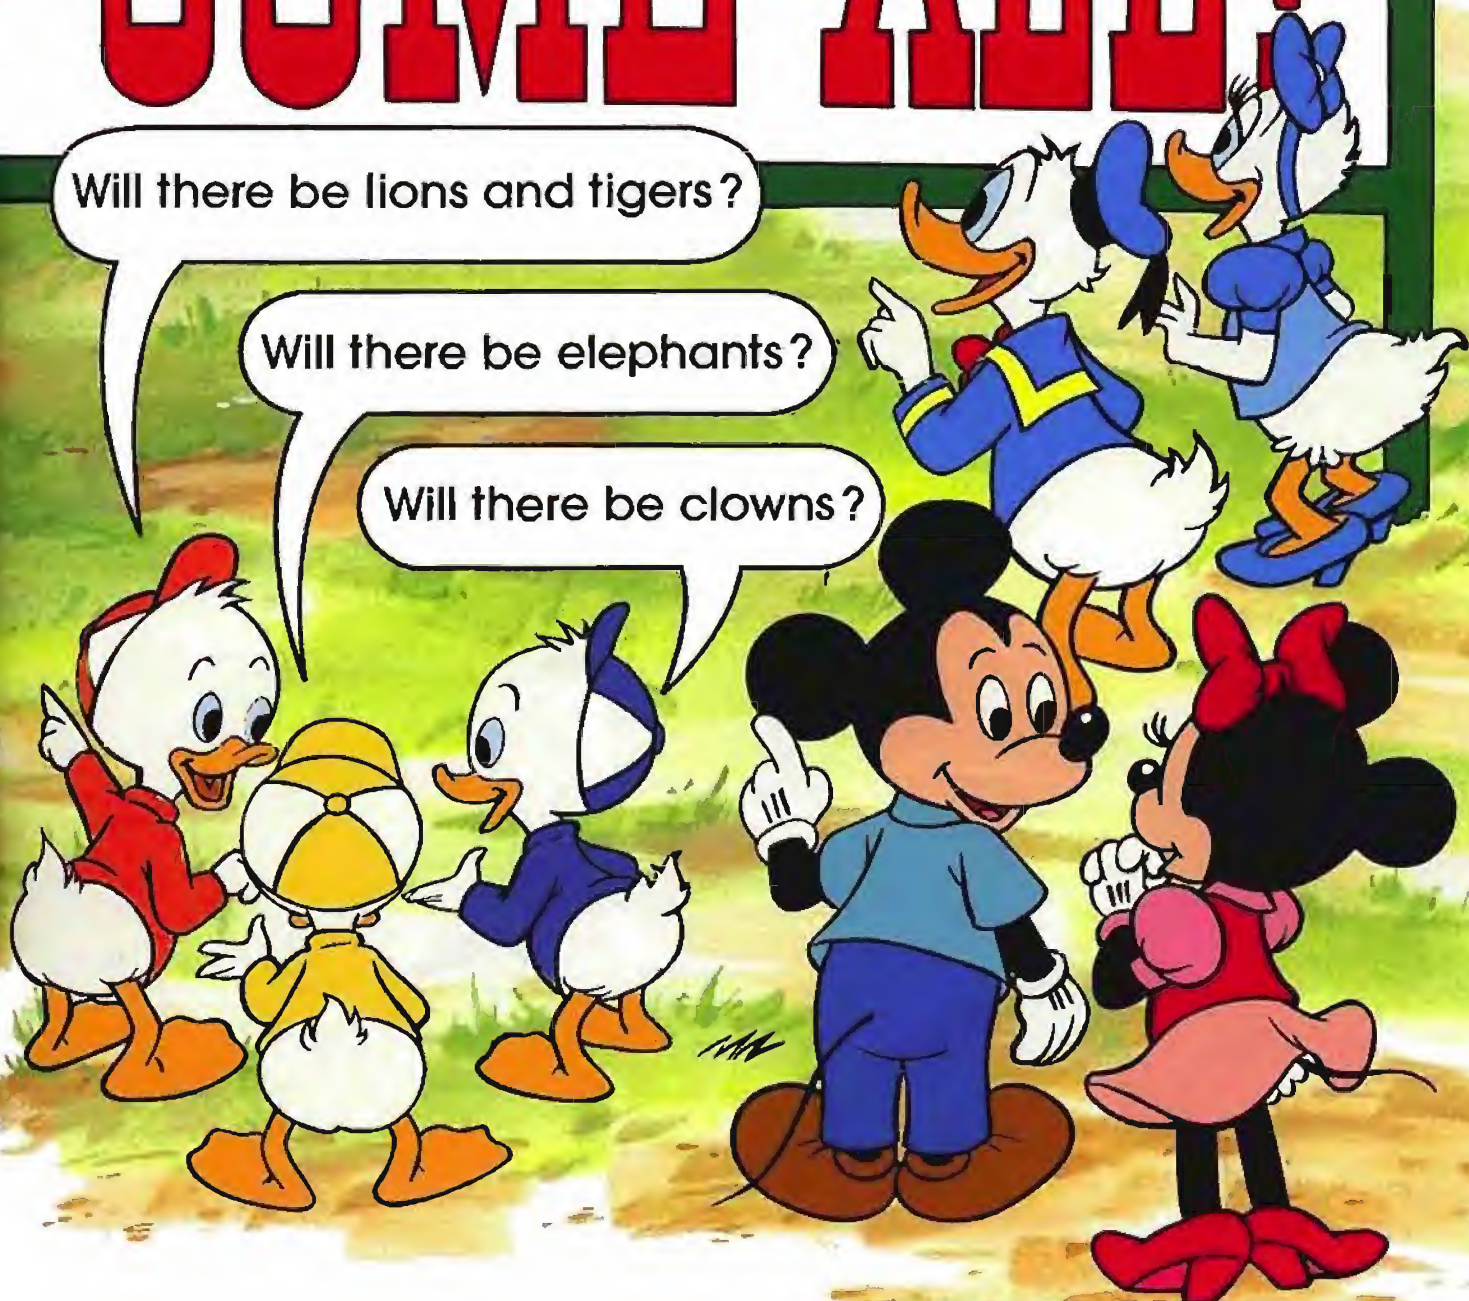

THE CIRCUS!

COME ALL!

Will there be lions and tigers?

Will there be elephants?

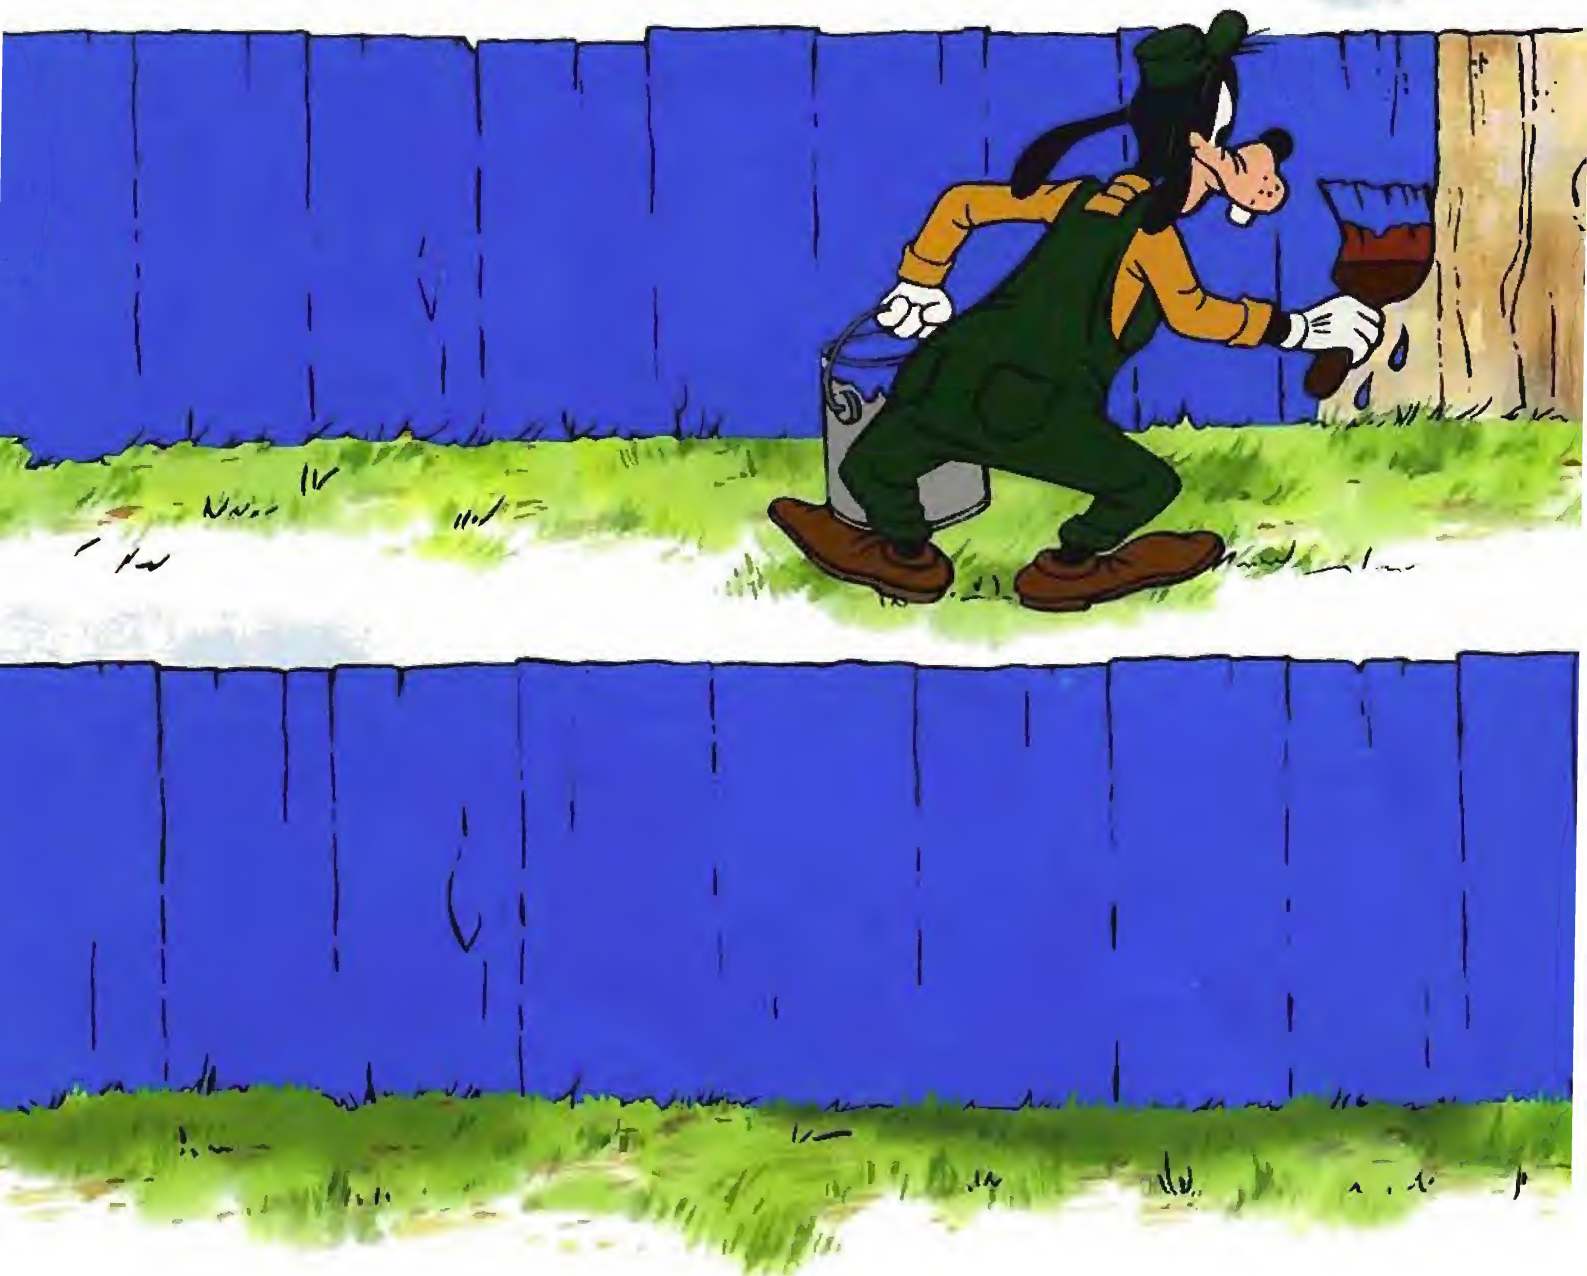

Will there be clowns?

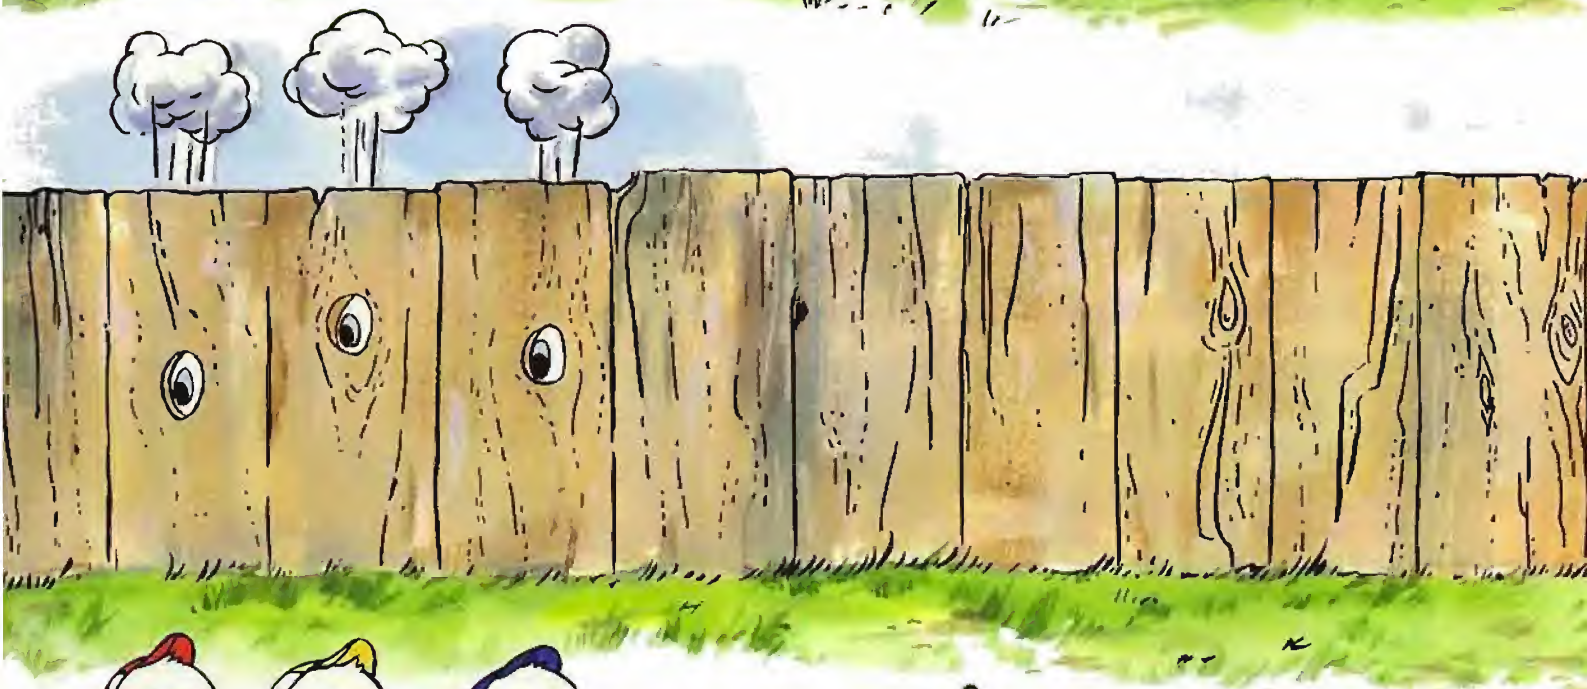

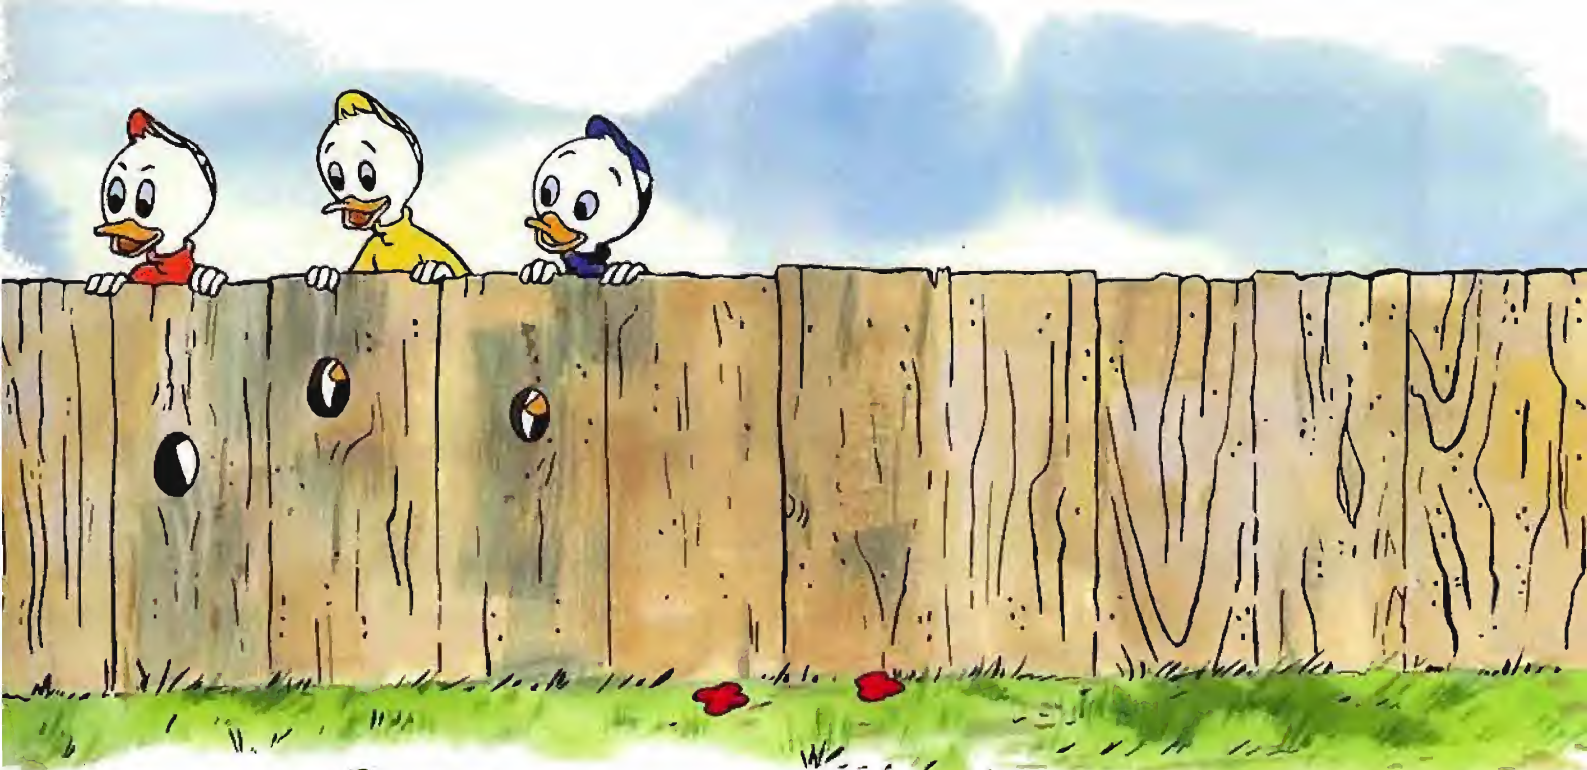

Goofy is going to paint.

Goofy is painting.

Look! Here comes the circus train!
It's coming down the track.

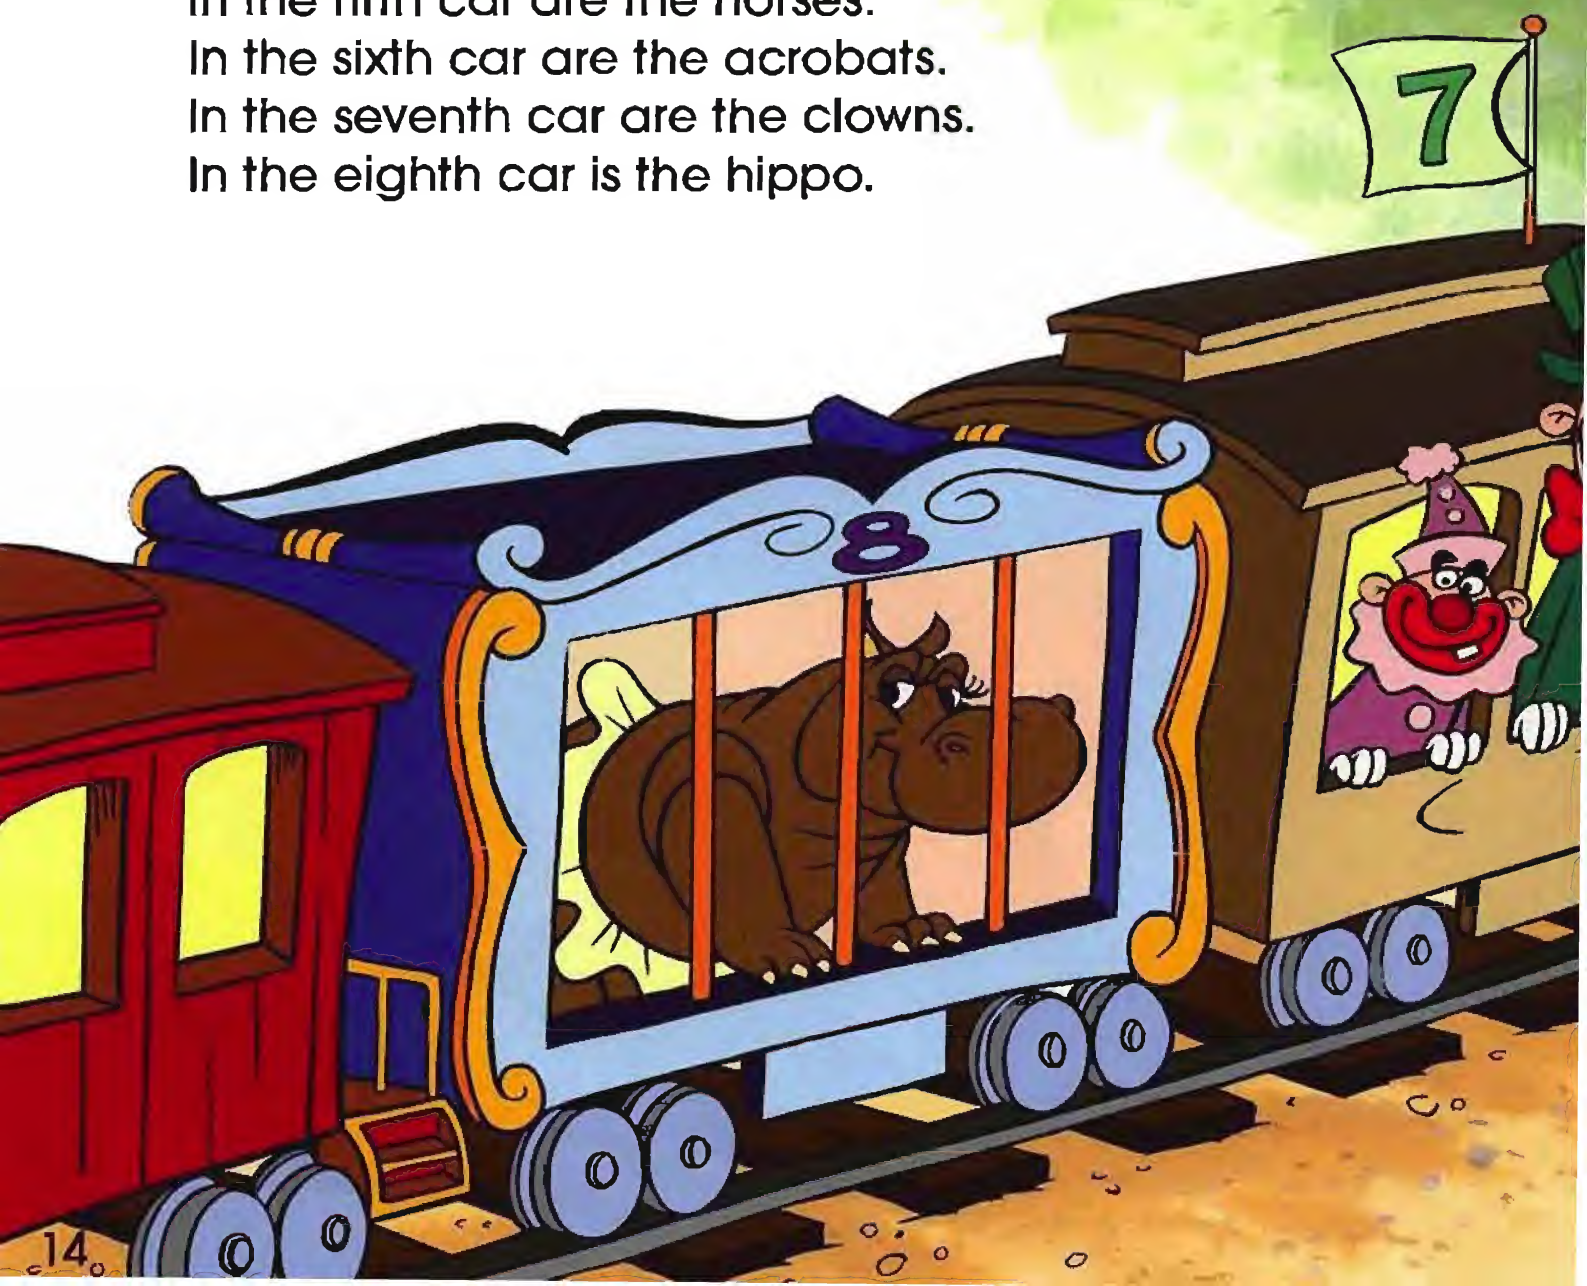

What's inside the circus train?

In the first car are the lions.
In the second car are the tigers.
In the third car are the bears.
In the fourth car are the elephants.

In the fifth car are the horses.
In the sixth car are the acrobats.
In the seventh car are the clowns.
In the eighth car is the hippo.

Look! There goes the circus train!
It's going down the track.

Huey, Dewey, and Louie are very excited.
They rush to tell everyone about the circus train.

While they're eating lunch,
they think about all the circus animals eating lunch.

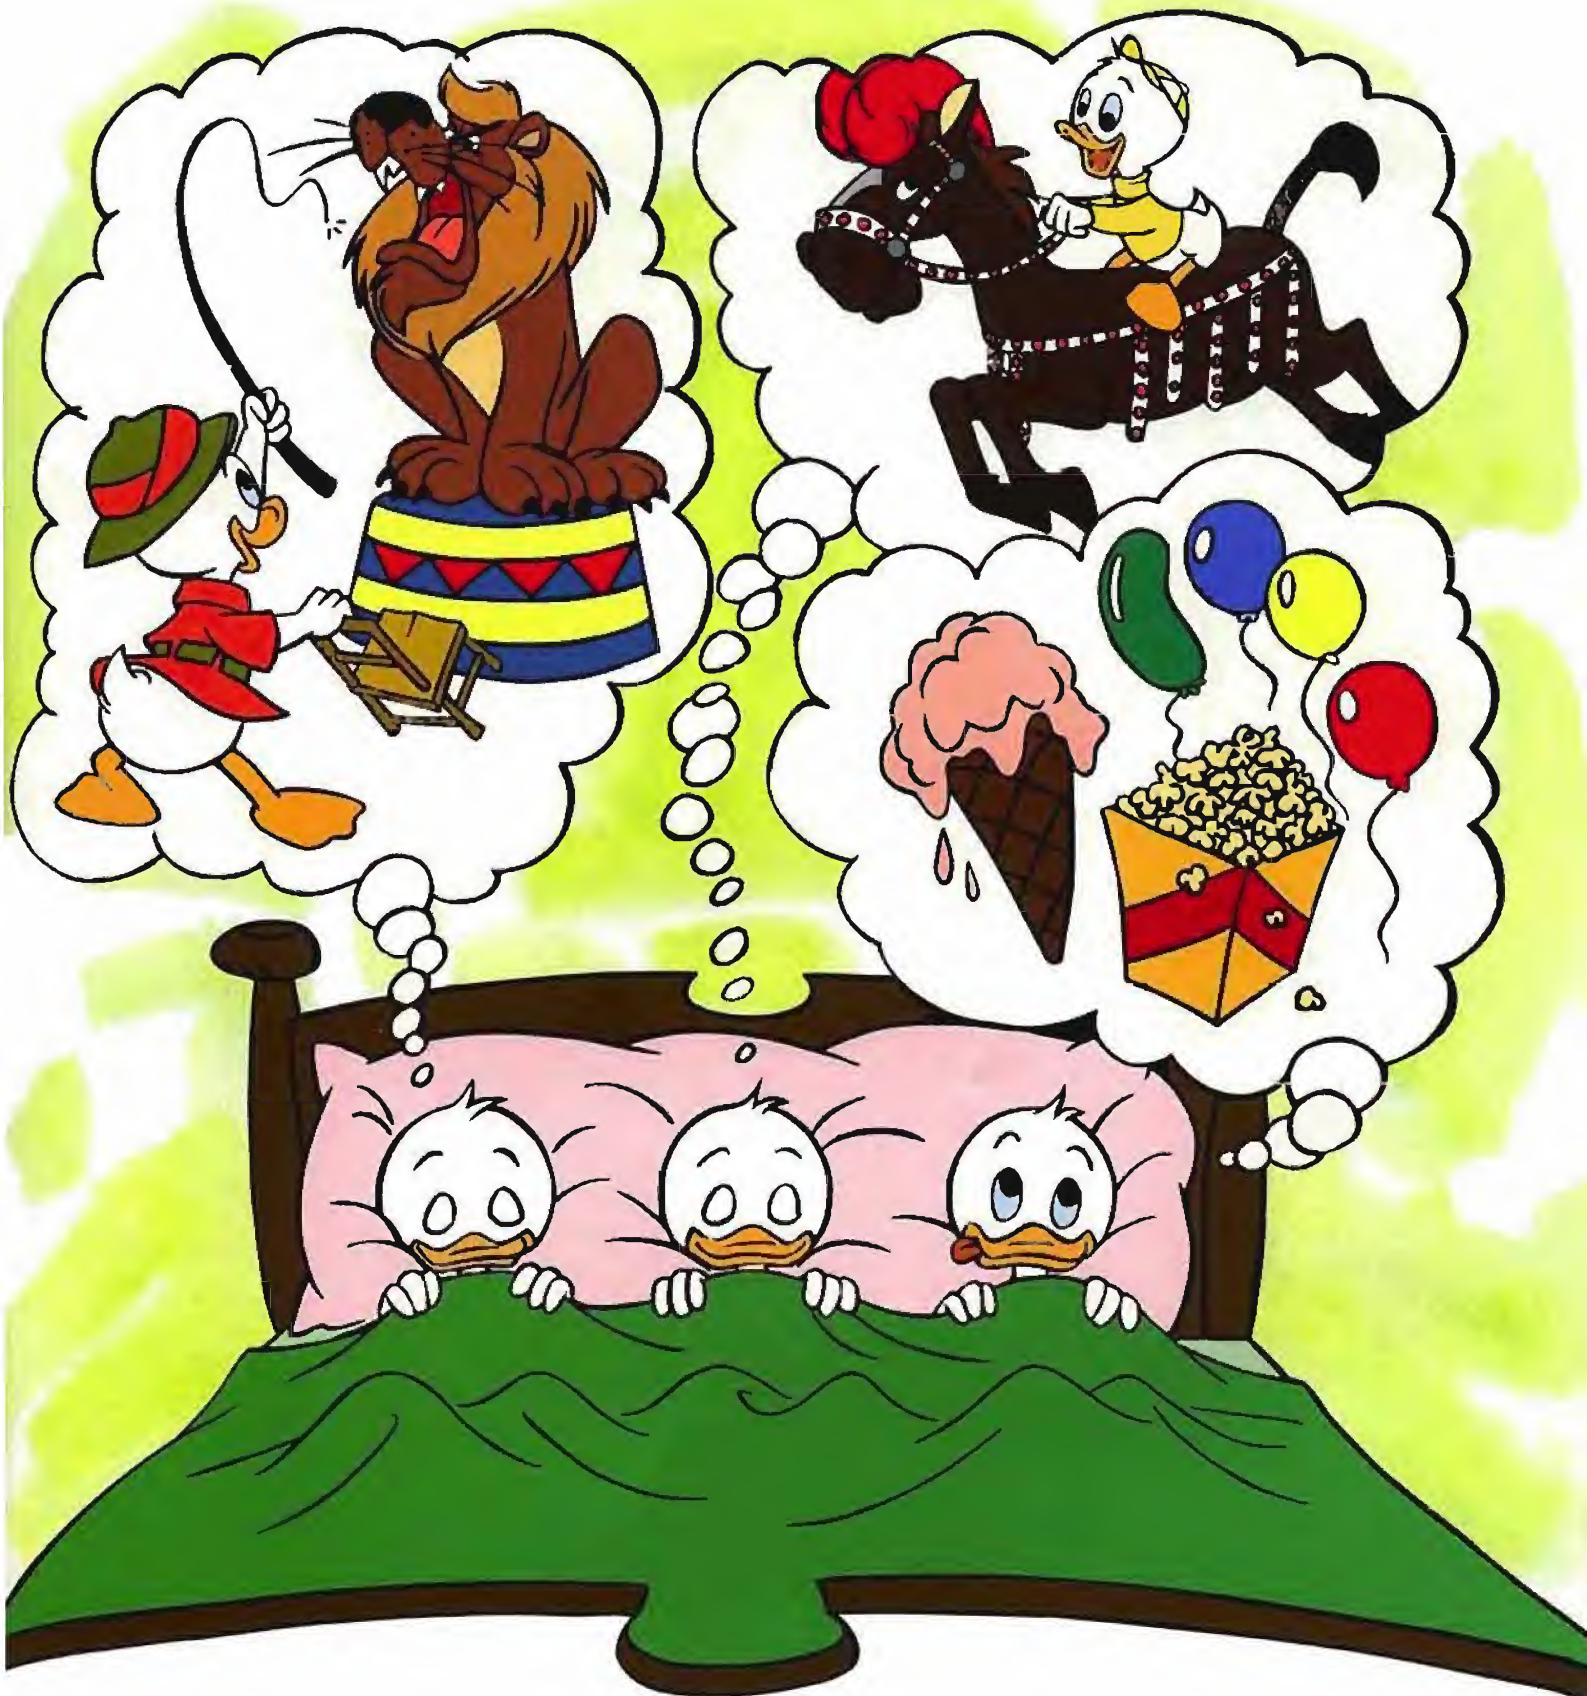

After lunch, they pretend that they are in the circus.

While they're eating dinner,
they think about all the circus animals eating dinner.

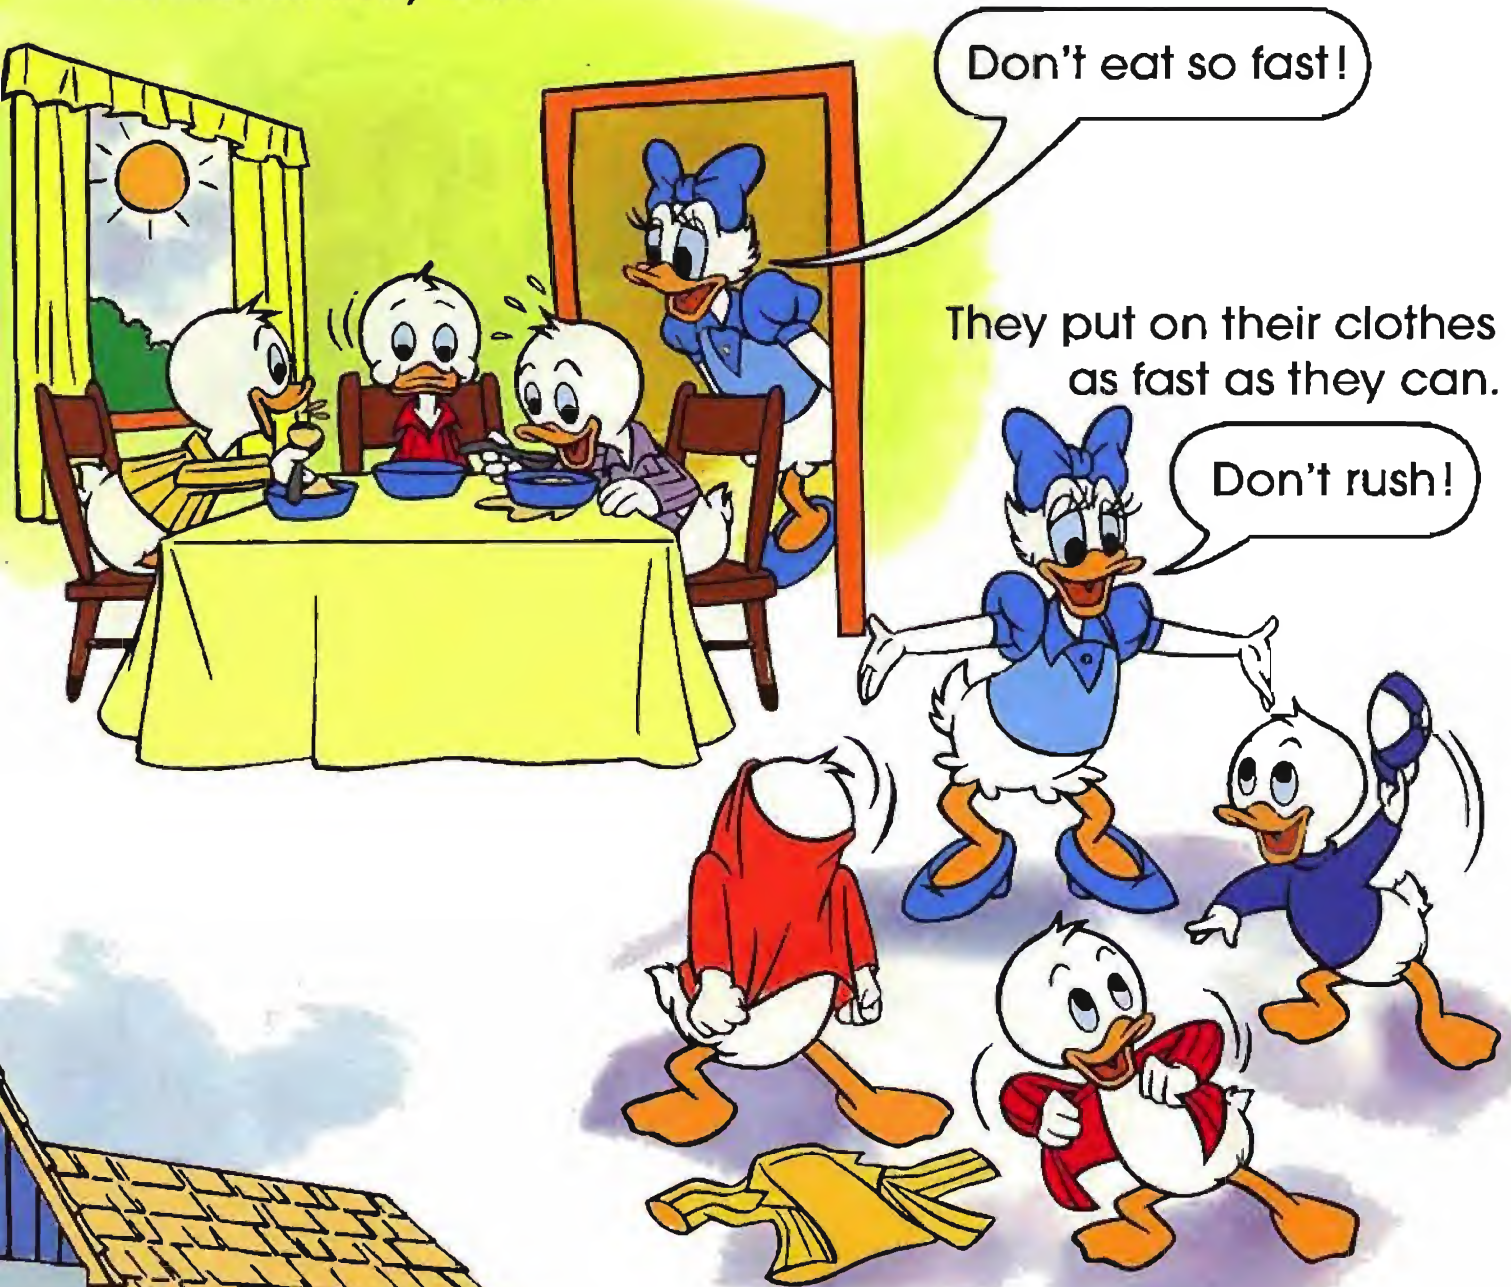

After dinner, they get ready for bed.

They all get into bed.
Huey and Dewey fall asleep. They dream about the circus.

Louie can't fall asleep. He's too excited.
He lies in bed awake and thinks about the circus.

The next morning, Huey, Dewey, and Louie eat breakfast as fast as they can.

They rush out of the house.

Look at all the people rushing down the street!
Where are they all going, rushing down the street?

Mothers and fathers with children and babies, grandmothers, grandfathers, too.

Fat people, thin people,

short people, tall people.

What are they going to do?

Look at all the people waiting on the street!
Why are they all standing, waiting on the street?

Listen to the circus band! Here it comes!

Mickey is the band leader —
Mickey leads the band.
He stands in front of everyone
And waves his hand.

Minnie's the baton twirler—
She twirls without a stop.
She twirls and twirls her gold baton
And never lets it drop.

Daisy is the trumpet player—
She plays the trumpet well.
Clarabelle is the bell ringer—
Clarabelle rings the bell.

Donald is the drummer —
Donald beats the drum.
Ratatatat! Ratatatat!
Trum! Trum! Trum!

Huey and Dewey play the flute —
Their flutes are new and shiny.
Louie plays the piccolo —
It's very, very tiny.

There goes the circus band! Wave goodbye!

Huey, Dewey, and Louie go to buy tickets for the circus.

They stand in line.

They wait for their turn.

When it's Huey's turn, he buys three tickets.

I'd like three tickets, please.

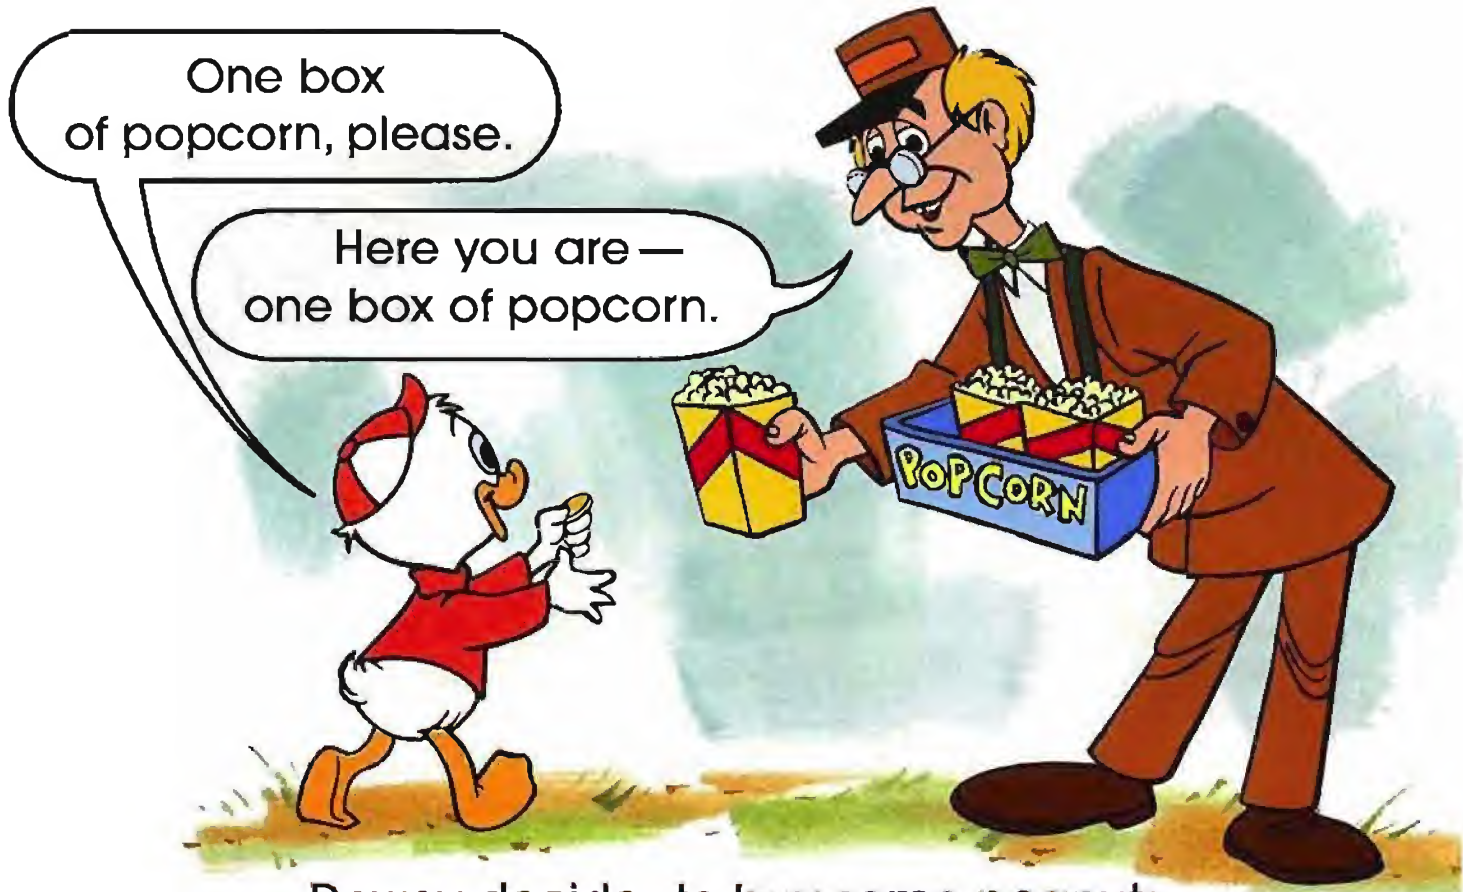

There are so many things to buy at the circus!

Huey decides to buy some popcorn.

Dewey decides to buy some peanuts.

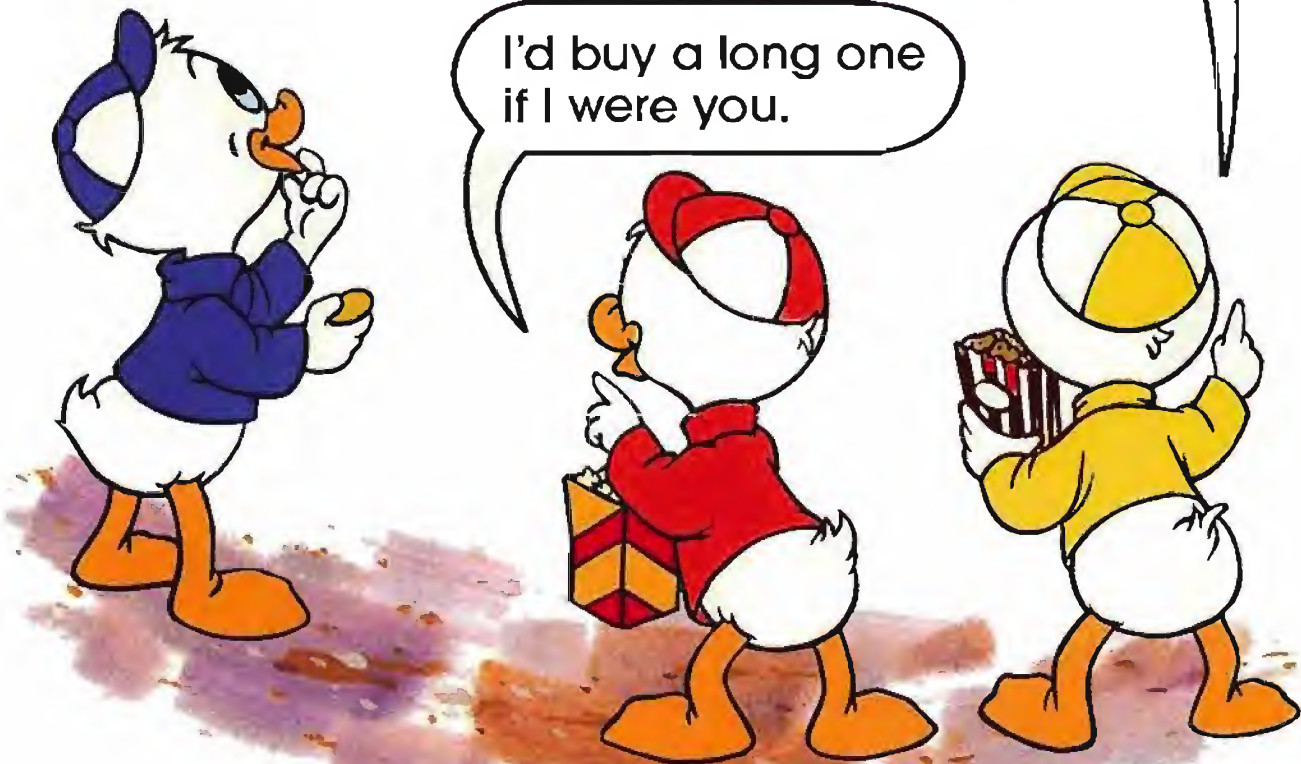

Louie decides to buy a balloon.
But he can't decide what kind of balloon to buy.

Should I buy
a long balloon or a round balloon?

I'd buy a round one
if I were you.

I'd buy a long one
if I were you.

Finally, Louie decides. He buys a round balloon.

What's wrong with this picture?

It's time to go into the tent for the big show!

Step right up! The show is about to begin!

Right here, in this ring —
a hippo that sings!

And in that ring there — some dancing bears!

The hippopotamus loves to dance...

and loves to sing.

What a big bottom!

Look at the hippo's bottom swing!

The hippopotamus swings her hips and stamps her feet!

While she dances, she sings her song.

I'm the happy hippopotamus!

The hippo dances...

She's the happy hippopotamus!

The dancing bears dance in pairs.
They dance around the floor.

Two by two, they bow to you,
And then they dance some more!

They turn together.

They bow to each other.

Goodbye for now!
But please come back!
There's a lot more to come!
